

Bud Kennedy - 'A Friend To All'

BUD KENNEDY

by HANK SCHOMBER
Flambeau Sports Editor

J.K. "Bud" Kennedy, FSU's head basketball coach for 18 years died last Friday of cancer. He was 59 years old. After serving a year as business manager and asst. basketball coach under now Dean of Men, Donald Loucks, Kennedy took the reins of the Seminole team. During his tenure Kennedy's teams posted 234 victories and 208 losses. Kennedy attended Kansas, Baker and Kansas State Teachers, and participated in football, basketball and track at each school. He graduated from the latter in 1932. After serving as a high school coach and director of city recreational programs, Kennedy joined the Navy during World War II. He came to FSU following his Navy duty.

In his 18 years at FSU Kennedy took the Seminoles and built them into one of the South's major basketball teams. His success in this span was remarkable, but no more so than his ability to make new friends for the university. Buddy Martin, Sports Editor of "Today" described Kennedy as, "A man with real keen insight for understanding and patience with his players. A friend to all, an enemy to none." His death leaves a big void in college basketball and an even bigger void in his enormous circle of friends and admirers. Joe Halberstein, Sports Editor of the "Gainesville Sun" remembered Kennedy, "(as) one FSU man who had nothing but friends in Gatorland." "Respect is not a big enough word to describe the affection Kennedy earned from players and foes alike," noted Al Whitmarsh of the "Orlando Sentinel." "Playing for him was a pleasure," said Jim Oler, a former player under Kennedy and now head coach at Brevard Jr. College. "There is just no way to describe the things he did for me and the others who were lucky enough to play for him. Everything I've done in coaching goes back to what he did for me. He was a great person," he said. Another Kennedy student, Joe Williams, is now head coach at Jacksonville University. "Bud also felt it was important to help young coaches," said Williams. "I made a lot of mistakes when I was a freshman coach at FSU, and one reason I developed so much, was through his patience."

Darrel Simmons in a column for the "Jacksonville Journal" said of Kennedy, "He spent 18 years building basketball and making friends for FSU. He lost some basketball games, I doubt if he ever lost a friend." One of Kennedy's many friends in basketball circles was Adolph Rupp, head coach of Kentucky's cage empire, and it was at the expense of his friend's team that Kennedy gained his most memorable victory. In December 1960 the Seminoles journeyed to Lexington for an early season game. On the Wildcats' home floor FSU pulled a stunning 63-58 upset. Bill Kastelz, Sports Editor of the "Florida Times-Union" summed it up. "To try to think of basketball at Florida State without thinking of Bud Kennedy... or vice versa... is next to impossible."

Sarah Robinson, Sherrill Ragans Named To Assist Coed's Dean

Sarah Moore Robinson has been named as asst. dean of women and Sherrill Ragans asst. dean of men, it was announced today. Both appointments become effective today, according to Dean of Students John J. Carey. "We are fortunate to have such qualified women assume these responsibilities," Carey will make a contribution not only to the Dean of Women's staff, but also to the total work of the Office of Student Affairs," Carey said. Miss Robinson replaces Elizabeth Brown who retires this summer. Miss Robinson, who joined the staff as Dean of Women Katherine Warren in 1955 as head counselor of the Dean's program and counselor in Agolia Hall, has for the past three years served as asst. dean of women. In her new post she will continue to work with women's groups, including the 4,340 students in 19 sororities on the campus. She will also serve as advisor to Garnet Key, Mortar Board and Mortified. Miss Robinson has bachelor's and master's degrees from Northwestern University. She has taught at New Hanover High School, Wilmington, N.C., Wesleyan College, Ga., and Hendrix College, Ark. Throughout the past seven years, Miss Robinson has taught piano in the School of Music at FSU. Mrs. Ragans came to FSU in 1959 as residence counselor in Inboard Hall and for the past three years has served in the same capacity in Craft Hall. For several years, she has taught Personnel Development.

ment in the basic studies program at FSU.

Mrs. Ragans is a graduate of Tift College, Forsyth, Ga., and has a master's degree from the University of Southern Mississippi. Prior to coming to FSU, she served as counselor for women students at William Carey College, Hattiesburg, Miss. She is the former secretary of the Florida Personnel and Guidance Association and a member of the Southern College Personnel Association.

Lessons, Trips, Fishing Offered By Union For III-B Recreation

Canoe trips, guitar lessons and a deep sea fishing trip are being offered by the University Union during trimester III-B. For this month four canoe trips are being offered. They will be trips down the Wacissa River July 9 and July 16. A trip down the Wakulla River is planned for July 23 and July 30 another trip down the Wacissa is scheduled. Tickets for the trips will go on sale in the Union Ticket Office eight days before each outing. The price is $2 per person. Persons participating in the canoe trips should bring their own lunch and drinks, according to a Union spokesman. The canoeing parties will leave from the Circus parking lot at 7:30 a.m. the day of the outing. Guitar lessons will be offered each Thursday night in room 246 of the Union for six weeks. The price of the lessons is $3 for the entire course. Each participant must furnish his own six string guitar. Interested people may obtain more information and register for the lessons in room 321 of the Union. A deep sea fishing trip is planned for July 16. The cost of the trip will be $8.24 per person and payment must be in advance. There is room for only 18 people on the fishing trip said a Union spokesman. The price of the trip includes transportation, boat fee, tackle and bait. The outing will leave from the Post Office parking lot at 6:45 a.m. the morning of the trip. Special swimming lessons for adults are being offered at the Union Pool. Further information may be obtained in Room 321, Union or by calling 599-2231.

L. Forum To Act On Closed Pools

"Closed City swimming pools which can be done" will be the topic of discussion at a special meeting of the Liberal Forum Sunday night at 7:30 p.m. in the Unitarian Chapel on Wildwood Ave. The meeting is open and interested persons are invited to attend said Doug Schocke acting president of Liberal Forum.

The city pools in Tallahassee were closed three years ago on grounds of insufficient funds by the City Commission. In a protest move Liberal Forum and other interested groups are picketing City Hall to have the pools opened. According to a Liberal Forum spokesman the pools were closed in order to prevent integration. "The lack of funds was only an excuse," he said.

There is a suit in the courts now to have the pools opened, he explained. "But," he continued, "it has been in the courts for three summers and it is likely to take several more."

Other proposals such as subletting the pools to private organizations or selling the pools has been turned down by the Commission. Concluding, the Liberal Forum spokesman said, "This problem involves us all. As students we have a unique freedom to act. We need not fear economic or political reprisal for our actions. Students should help as best they can."

Holiday At Lake Set

The Reservation is having a "July Fourth Special" Monday that will include free swimming and movies. Hours for the reservation will be 10 a.m. to sunset. Free transportation will leave the parking lot at Call and Woodward Streets, across from the Union, at 9:30 a.m., 12:30 p.m., 2:30 p.m., 4:30 p.m. and 6 p.m. The free movie, "Five Weeks in a Balloon," will be shown in cabin four at 4 p.m. Other services offered during the holiday special will include canoeing for $.25 per hour and boat launching for $.50. The concession stand will be open and life guards will be on duty.

Bud Kennedy

One afternoon earlier this year, J.K. "Bud" Kennedy, FSU's head basketball coach for the past 18 years, was discussing a subject that was very close to him -- the development of basketball here and throughout the state.

In the course of conversation Kennedy repeated a remark made to him by Kentucky's great coach, Adolph Rupp.

Rupp had come to FSU to lead a coaching clinic. Which Kennedy hoped would create some interest around the state.

During his brief stay very little attention was given to the clinic. "In fact," added Kennedy, "while he was here not one reporter came out to talk to Rupp."

"Just before he was to leave," the FSU coach continued, "Adolph came to me and said, 'Bud I wouldn't have a job coaching in this state. There is no interest in basketball down here . . . no enthusiasm from the press.'"

Bud Kennedy, however, was not here because he did not have the coaching ability to get a job somewhere else, or because he was being paid an extremely large salary. He was here because he saw and accepted the challenge to build basketball at FSU and throughout the state.

Through storms of disappointment, protest and criticism he brought the FSU basketball program from its infancy to major college status passing in ability along the way schools with basketball backgrounds two and threetimes as old as FSU's.

Kennedy's success is attested to by the fact that he is passed in longevity by only two active coaches, Lyles Alley of Furman, and Rupp.

Both on and off the court Kennedy was a "gentlemen's gentleman."

He seldom showed a great deal of emotion during a game and arguing with a referee was rarely in evidence.

No matter how tough a loss might have been the Seminole coach was always able to come up with a good word about both teams within a few minutes of the games end.

Wherever he went, whether on speaking engagements, recruiting trips or vacationing, Kennedy always came back after making several new friends. Friends who would never forget him.

To his players Kennedy was more than a coach. He took a deep personal interest in every one of them, and many of them looked upon him almost as a "second father."

The relationship built on four years of work on and off the playing courts at FSU did not stop with the players' graduation. The FSU coach had been responsible for getting many of "his boys" their first job. He also kept in contact with all of them.

Kennedy's most recent and biggest dream, was a new "all-sports" arena for FSU. He pointed out the financial and recruiting difficulties Tully Gey presented to the basketball team. He emphasized that it would be close to impossible to expand the Seminoles' basketball program, without first acquiring a new coliseum.

In his office is a model of this projected "sports palace." A three story structure that could be used not only for basketball, but in some manner, be it practice or competition, by almost every sport at FSU.

In addition it would open new opportunities for the circus and the entertainment series at FSU, as well as provide office and class room space.

Now, because of his untimely death, Kennedy will never see his dream realized. There could be no finer tribute to the memory of this man who devoted nearly the last two decades to building a better State and University than expediting the construction of the arena.

When it is completed no one would have far to look to see whose name it should carry - basketball at FSU and Bud Kennedy are inseparable.

By MONTI CASSALLS

During the five years I've been away, the changes here have been astounding. FSU has been cutting down roads, piling up new buildings, and obliterating familiar landmarks.

The night I arrived, I wandered down to the Student Union wistfully thinking of the cheer and companionship of friends I hadn't made yet, paused in front of a large fountain, took out my compass, and tried to get my bearings.

The bookstore had spread into the post office, the post office had moved into the Student Union, and the Student Union was sitting in the parking lot. Across what was once a street, the former lovely park-like area had turned into a swimming pool. I noticed the next day that the tennis courts had multiplied, the shuffle board courts and baseball diamond next to the women's gym had become a building, and that "Bill's" had apparently bought out "The Corner." Everywhere I inquired into someone or something long departed, I felt like long skirts and bobble sox. So--if you see me picking my way carefully across the campus, compass and map in hand, dazed look in eyes, step up if you will, and ask me gently where I want to go. Then, if you'll give me a turn in that direction, and a little push--thanks.

Have you ever been in a situation where weird circumstances led people to believe you were absolutely nuts, and there wasn't a thing you could do about it? Welcome to the club, I call this little incident, "Howard and the Tree."

My mother wanted a lime tree, so one evening in our way to class, we bought a tiny one and put it in the back seat. Howard walked me to my car that night, and commented on it. "Yes," I said laughing, "That's my little pet--always rides in the back seat. We're quite fond of it."

Howard laughed. A few weeks later, my greedy mother decided she wanted another lime tree, so on our way to class, we picked up a second somewhat larger one. Howard walked me to my car--we were dating by then--and scratched himself on a thorn kissing me. "My pet must be jealous," I teased. Howard gave me an odd look, and walked away nursing his hand.

Shortly after, we had a fight and quit dating. It was maybe three months later when my father and I decided to get my mother a tangle tree for an anniversary gift.

It was a big, bushy thing, and our way home with it, we passed Howard, with another girl, waving. As he saw the tree, a look of incredulous grin spread over his face, and he sped away quickly. I drove on, conscious to near hysteria, I could just hear him explaining, "There's this tree, girl... and she's got this tree."

Wilson Micks Retires This Month

Dr. Wilson Micks, whose textbooks have guided several thousand students through the French language, is retiring this month after 37 years of teaching, 18 of them in the Dept. of Modern Languages at FSU.

Since joining the FSU faculty in 1948, Micks has seen many of his students join him in the teaching profession after completing advanced degrees at the university. His publications, which include a beginning French grammar book, have served many more and are now being used in colleges and universities all over the country.

Micks has witnessed many changes in the teaching of modern languages. Not the least of these has been the switch from the laborious, often dull, drilling in grammar rules to the new oral approach, he said. In the latter method the student learns by listening and acquires some speaking knowledge of the language before he reads or writes it.

Micks has a bachelor's degree from Union College, Schenectady, N.Y., a master's degree from Harvard, and his doctorate from the University of Toulouse.

He has also studied at the Sorbonne, the University of Grenoble, the University of Laval in Quebec, the University of Pennsylvania and at Columbia University. He is a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity.

For four years, Micks taught English, two of them at the American University of Beirut in Lebanon. Before coming to FSU, he taught French for two years at the University of Pennsylvania and for 15 at the University of Rochester.

His 14 trips to France include one via London under the auspices of US Army during World War II, to take him from LeMans to Marseilles to Nancy and across Alsace to Germany.

In 1933, he was made an honorary citizen of Tulle, France, where he spent a year studying the Limousin dialect in preparation for his dissertation at the University of Toulouse. He is also an Officer d'Academie, an award usually reserved for teachers in France but occasionally given to teachers of French abroad.

After his retirement, Micks plans to devote more time to his hobby--touring the United States. "I saw it late in life," he says, "I am enthusiastic about it; I hope to maintain his residence between in Tallahassee."

Hogan Named For Committee

Patrick W. Hogan, director of university relations at FSU, has been appointed to a national committee on college and university information programs.

The appointment, announced by University of Virginia President Edgar F. Shannon, president of the National Association of State Universities and Land-Grant Colleges, is for a three-year term on the Association's five-member Executive Committee on Information.

FSU is one of 97 state universities and landgrant colleges which comprise the membership of the association.

Others appointed by Shannon to serve on the Information Committee are James Denison, Michigan State University; Charles Flynn, University of Illinois; James Jordan, Indiana University; and Parry Sorenson, University of Utah. The committee is meeting this week in the nation's capitol to formulate information programs for the association.

Hogan, who has directed FSU's Division of University Relations since 1964, was appointed earlier this year to thentional board of trustees of the American College Public Relations Association.

Joining the FSU staff as assistant director of sports publicity in 1952, Hogan became sports publicity director in 1954 and served in that capacity until 1959.

FSU Granted $50,000

A new grant of $50,000 from the US Office of Education will be used to purchase additional special undergraduate instructional equipment for the Educational Media Center, Dept. of Modern Languages and Strozzer Library, it was announced today.

The grant is under the US Higher Education Act of 1965, Title VI, according to John F. Zupf, executive asst. to the vice president for academic affairs at FSU. Under the terms of the program, FSU will contribute an additional $50,000, bringing the total funds to $100,000, Zupf said.

He said $23,000 of the $50,000 will be used to purchase some 230 new educational films to be added to the 4000 in the Educational Media Center's film library.

125 FSU, FSCW Grads To Return

Some 125 graduates of FSU and FSCW will return to the campus July 17 for four days of lectures and discussions on contemporary society.

Fifteen FSU faculty members will lecture on four topics: Automation, the Great Society in the 20th Century, new Educational Vistas at FSU and Creative Arts in the 20th Century.

Participants represent a response to some 3,500 invitations mailed to alumnae, who while in college, belonged to academic honoraries, graduated with honors, or distinguished themselves as student leaders, according to Dean of Women Katherine Warren, chairman for the FSU Committee on the Education of Women.

During the four day Fourth Annual Alumnae Seminar, "Perspectives-1966," 45-minute lecture sessions will be followed by an equal time of discussion. Registration and seminar classes will be in the University Union.

Faculty speakers will be introduced at an 8:15 a.m. general assembly Monday, July 17, at which Mrs. Jeanne Brock, asst. director of the Office of Conferences will preside. Lectures will follow this schedule: Lectures on "Automation" will be from 8:30-10:00 a.m. daily. Monday-Dr. Steve Edwards, assistant professor of Physics; Tuesday-Dr. Howard Stoller, associate professor of educational research and testing; Wednesday-tours of science center; computer center, FSU-TV and FM radio station

A new exhibition—with a quixotic title, bright splashes of color, some unique art forms and works by both faculty and students—has been hung in FSU's Art Gallery.

Actually the 30 or more art works are not hung in the usual place on the art gallery walls. They are in the gallery's smaller four-room "house of art" which is designed to give an idea of how they might look in a home.

Most of the works in The Last Post Surrealist Invitational and Quadra-Centennial Exhibition are either collages or assemblages. An assemblage is made by taking an everyday object and putting it into a new and unexpected form. One of the students, Nannie Carter, made hers with a combination of plastic fruits, sneakers, colls and other toys, mounted in frames and sprayed with gold paint.

Another student, Len Wiesener, combined the torso of a mannequin with a plaster cast head and painted air conditioning ducts.

Others in the show include Jerold Rosenblum, instructor of art; Asher Derman, curator of the Art Gallery; Richard Kraft, instructor of art; Jack Smith and Espin Bullock.

Bright color is used in the works as well as in the unique "art house" in which the works are displayed.

The "building," 20 by 25 feet square and eight feet high, took about a month to construct, Derman said.

The exhibition will remain up through July 30. Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturdays and 1 to 4 p.m. on Sundays.

Sculpture suitable for outdoor decor of the Florida home is on exhibition on the lawn in front of the art gallery. The works are by students of George F. Holtschuh.

WFSU-TV Gets Award

FSU's educational television station WFSU-TV was presented a Certificate of Merit by the Florida Bar Association for the production "Call Your Lawyer" recently in Hollywood, Fla., at the Florida Bar Convention.

Produced in cooperation with the Tallahassee Bar Association, the series spotlighted such problems as automobile accidents, buying a home, wills and estates, the citizen's responsibility and other topics.

The host for the series was Ed Herp, FSU-TV's director of broadcasting; coordinator, Carl Pennington, local attorney; producer-director, James D. Moran of the WFSU-TV staff; and executive producer was Duane Franceschi, WFSU-TV's program manager.

July 4 Bell Sounding Planned

In cooperation with a nation-wide program, the Tallahassee Altruism Club is sponsoring a four-minute bell-ringing at 1 p.m. Monday, Independence Day.

This, the fourth annual bell-ringing, is to be in Waller Park, behind the Capitol, where a replica of the Liberty Bell is located.

The proponents of the idea, Eric Hatch, a distinguished writer, and Eric Sloane, artist and writer, suggested that "on July 4, 1963, and each year thereafter, all church bells, all bells in government buildings and all carillon bells in colleges and universities will broadcast the sound of the bells for two minutes followed by a reading from the Declaration of Independence."

"The bell-ringing is a reminder of the day in 1776 when the Declaration of Independence was approved by the Continental Congress," a spokesman for the Tallahassee Altruism Club.

Delegate John Adams said on the historical day, "It is an apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the day of deliverance by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, gun bells, bonfires and illuminations from one end of this continent to the other, from this time forward forevermore."

Courts Studied

Student Body President Larry Gonzalez, announced today the appointment of an executive commission to formulate revision of what he termed an "antiquated judicial system."

Mel Smith, former sec. of state, sec. of intercollegiate and public affairs, and presently a member of the Summer Legislative Council, has been named to head the commission. Other members include Pete Crowell, Alice Davies, Brenda Epperson, Karen Hammond, Jim Harrison, Gary Karner, George Noga and Margaret Wilkerson.

Commenting on his action Gonzalez said, "Student Government has long apologized to students for a multitude of inequities perpetrated by our existing judicial structure."

He also commented "It has been felt by former student leaders that the present system should be given a chance to work itself into an effective judicial body. Unfortunately," he continued, "the test of time has proven that the very concept upon which the present system is based is in need of revision. That the present system has been given an adequate chance and failed, we must admit...the purpose of the newly established commission will be to meet our urgent need for a fair and workable judicial system."

Gonzalez went on to point out that even though major revision of our court structure is needed "... my main consideration is that of guaranteeing to every individual student the same rights to which he would be entitled in any U.S. civil court."

Forum Discusses LSD

Dr. Michael J. Greenberg, assoc. professor of Biological Science, will present a lecture and discussion session Wednesday at 4 p.m. in the Union Browning Lounge. The topic will be the controversial drug LSD.

Having done research in this field, Greenberg is well qualified to give such a presentation, said a Union spokesman.

"Where the Action Is", the Dick Clark sponsored road version of his ABC television program, will be at FSU Wednesday night July 20 at 8:30 p.m.

Featured in "Where the Action Is" will be such well known stars as "The Young Rascals", Steve Alaimo, Keith Allison, B.J. Thomas, Tina Mason, "The Critters", and "The Knickerbockers".

The program, brought to FSU by the Student Entertainment Series, will be presented in Campbell Stadium. In the event of rain the program will move to Westcott Auditorium for two shows.

Admission will be $2 per person. Tickets are on sale at the Union Ticket Office.

According to Kay Vernon, director of special events at FSU, the advance ticket sale will be limited to 3200 tickets. This is due to the limited seating capacity in Westcott, she explained.

If the weather is good there will be additional tickets on sale at Campbell Stadium the night of the show. The price of tickets at the door will be $2.

This is the first time the Student Entertainment Series has presented a program at Campbell Stadium said Mrs. Vernon.

Some of the entertainment will include songs such as "The Critters" latest hit "The Younger Girl" and many others.

B.J. Thomas is known for his first hit "I'm So Lonesome I Could Cry" plus several hits he has had following that.

"The Knickerbockers" are most famous for their ability to imitate "Top 10" sounds by other artists. They have also recorded the hit song "Lies".

STEVE ALAIMO

THE KNICKERBOCKERS

... are only a few of the many top recording artists that will be in Campbell Stadium July 20 for the Student Entertainment Series sponsored show "Where the Action Is."

THE CRITTERS

Cafeteria Problems Exposed

by MONTI CASSALLS

During the five years since I graduated from Leon High School, right here in Tallahassee, the changes there have been astounding. They've been... No, I'm not going to start out this way every time; it's just that I'm still shaking my head sadly over all the changes that started the minute my back was turned. Forgive an old woman her mutterings. All my friends... dead and buried... married, anyway, which is just as bad, and moved away. Sad. Very sad.

All except Thorquod. I remember Thorquod seven years ago when he was just a skinny little boy in pig-tails. I don't know—was it the boy who's supposed to go away and come back to find the girl grown up? Well, as I comfortingly say to myself, if a thing's worth doing at all, it's worth doing upside down and backwards. At any rate, I did come home, and there he was, all big, and everything.

Several of my freshman friends have expressed an ignorance of the paging system in college, so of the public service to them, I'll explain briefly:

Approach the switchboard operator at the main desk in the dorm where the girl lives, and tell her the girl's name and preferably floor and room number. She will then call the girl via intercom, and the girl will come down to the main lounge where you are. O.K.? I might add that the quiet, pleasant, "Mary, you have a caller," used here, is so much nicer than the voice shouting into a wide-open intercom that serves six floors: "Whitabel Schmuggins! Report to the front desk immediately!", that I remember so well at my own alma mater.

I am taking it upon myself to warn everyone who is still blissfully unaware, about the perils of the napkin holders in the Student Union dining hall. It seems they lay over the edge about two inches—just enough room to slide your tray under and knock over your orange juice—into your cereal, papers, and whatnot. I see it happen almost every morning. The few times I've attempted to warn people personally, I've been received with curious stares and tolerant smiles. Now I can rest content.

I wonder how many of you have experienced that horrible, sinking feeling that comes when you've struggled through the cafeteria line, and discover when you're ready to sit down that you don't know a soul in that whole cafeteria? As you go skulking off to a miserable little table somewhere in a corner to eat by yourself, I wonder if you have ever wondered, as I have, just how you can get acquainted with people. Short of jumping up on a table and shouting, "Hi, everybody! I'm Hotchkiss! Who're you?", there doesn't seem to be much way.

I wish they had a long table for lonely, friendless newcomers. Trouble is, nobody would admit to being lonely and friendless. I mean, would you sit down at a table under a sign that said, "Lonely, friendless people, eat here?" There ought to be some way. I'll deal further with the problem next week.

I've been observing with a great deal of interest the candy bar machines in the Student Union. There those candy bars sit, on their little

Gunn's Column

El Matador

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Skip Gunn is studying at a Spanish University in Valencia, Spain during III-B as part of the Valencia program offered by the Dept. of Modern Languages.) Valencia, Spain—Today I saw my first bullfight. I agree with Ernest Hemingway when he said whatever he said about bullfights. The exhibition is quite a sight to behold... even to my untrained eye.

Here in Valencia the fights begin every Sunday afternoon at six o'clock. The price of admission varies. Seats located on the sunny side of the arena are cheaper than those on the shady side. I sat in the shady part and paid the equivalent of 60 cents.

Today the program was devoted to young matadors. Each fight lasted 20 or 25 minutes. I was surprised to note that the "star" matador of each fight had three or four other matadors to help him out when he got into trouble. I had always thought that the matador was on his own when he entered the bull ring.

This afternoon none of the matadors were even hurt (well, maybe a little) but six bulls bit the dust. After each fight the matador walked triumphantly around the bull ring while the crowd applauded. As a sign of approval, some spectators threw their hats into the ring, which the matador picked up and then chucked back into the stands. One matador also threw back a shoe which had been tossed at him.

It's odd, but after the fights were over I felt pity, not for the bull, but for one of the matadors whose ineptness caused a dying bull to remain on his feet while the matador tried vainly to drive his sword through the bull's shoulder blades.

Maybe the matador will do better next week.

Perhaps next week the matador will improve in his skill and I will improve in my understanding.

green ledges, never knowing when it will be their turn to go. Can you imagine the shock it must be? A loud bang, the floor falls away, you crash to the bottom, slide through an opening, are snatched up, stripped of your dignity, and popped into someone's grinning, gaping, unbrushed mouth. Horrible! I'm tempted to get up a protest group. We could all get placards and sit stonily around the Union—"Machine Brutality", "Unfair to Candy Bars", and the like. Probably never get off the ground, though...

Second Sports Car Rally Set For Students, Faculty July 23

Sports car rally open to all students, faculty and staff members sponsored by the Union Recreation Committee, will take place Saturday July 23, at Campbell Stadium. Each entrant will be required to follow a specified route at a given average speed. Entrants will be penalized for early arrival or lateness of the finish. This will be a "time-bag" rally, in which the participants look for patches of lime on the road for their directions of travel. If they come to a four-way intersection marked by a lime bag, they must determine which of the other three roads is the correct route. To do this, they travel one-half mile down each of the roads until they find another lime bag which will tell them that they are on the correct road. All cars are eligible to compete. Drivers wishing to enter should sign up in Room 315 Union and be prepared to pay a $1.50 entry fee at that time. The entry fee will cover the cost of food and drinks at the Reservation, sports car movies.

Trip Scheduled To See Braves

A trip to Atlanta to see the Atlanta Braves in action against the San Francisco Giants Saturday, July 30, is being sponsored by the Special Events Committee of the Union Program Council.

There will be two games—with the total fee covering the afternoon game and the evening game being optional. The reserved seats will be on the field level.

The bus will leave at 5:30 a.m. the morning of July 30 and will leave Atlanta for Tallahassee in the afternoon of Sunday, July 31, with the morning free.

Lodging accommodations have been arranged for students and married couples. Total cost will be $12, with this including bus fare, the price of one ticket to the game, and lodging. Spending money for meals and extras should be brought depending on personal needs.

Stop by Room 321 of the Union for reservations. There are 35 spaces available and the total fee of $12 must be in by 5 p.m. Friday, July 22.

Bureau Features

Travel Brochure

The Special Events Committee of the Union Program Council is now operating a Travel Bureau for FSU students, staff, and faculty. The Bureau consists of brochures, literature, and information on sites to see, where to stay, special attractions in Florida and neighboring states.

Anyone planning a trip or going through any of the following states will find the travel bureau information quite helpful and interesting: Alabama, Florida, Georgia, and Louisiana.

There is information pertaining to a total of 23 cities in these states. There is also available a Rand McNally travel guide which would be of help to those planning a trip to any one of the fifty states, Mexico, and Canada.

The Volkswagen Karmann Ghia isn't like other cars.

It's a Pussycat.

It drives around town looking like an expensive sports car, but underneath is a Volkswagen engine.

So when there's trouble...the Volkswagen in it comes out.

If need be, we can replace the whole engine in an hour and a half!

But, in most cases, what seems to be a major problem can be solved with a minor adjustment. Or, genuine VW parts at VW prices.

Also, you won't have to wait weeks for some part to be shipped in from parts unknown. Over 4,000 are right where we can put our hands on them.

That's the thing about a Pussycat.

It looks like it runs $5,000, but it actually runs less than $2,500, and you probably won't really appreciate it until it stops running.

'Action' Show Wednesday; Tickets On Sale At Union

Tickets are now on sale in the Union Ticket Office for "Where the Action Is," which will be presented in Campbell Stadium Wednesday night at 8:30 p.m.

Ticket price for students and non-students is $2 each. There are no reserved seats, and tickets will be sold at the door. The Union Ticket Office is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

In case of rain the program will be in Westcott Auditorium for two performances. The Westcott shows are set for 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Advance ticket sales are limited to 3,200 tickets, which is the seating capacity for two shows in Westcott. According to Mrs. Ruth Tate, director of the Ticket Office, there are still plenty of advance tickets available.

When buying advance tickets, a choice will be given for the time of the Westcott performance desired in the case of rain. Therefore, all advance ticket buyers will be given two tickets, one for Campbell stadium and the other for a Westcott show.

"Where the Action Is" will feature "The Young Rascals," Keith Allison, B.J. Thomas, Tina Mason, Steve Alaimo, "The Critters" and "The Knickerbockers."

According to Kay Vernon, director of special events at FSU, this is the first time the Student Entertainment Series has presented a program at Campbell Stadium.

Some of the Dick Clark sponsored program will include songs such as "The Critters," latest hit "The Younger Girl" and many others.

"The Knickerbockers" are most famous for their ability to imitate "Top Ten" sounds by other artists. They have also recorded the hit song "Lies."

B.J. Thomas is known for his first hit "I'm So Lonesome I Could Cry," as well as several other hits he has had following that.

Law Scholarship Fund Announced

A special committee has been set up in the State Attorney General's office to receive contributions to the Ralph E. Odum Memorial Law Scholarship Fund for the Study of Law.

Scholarship Fund for the Study of Law. Odum, long-time attorney to the Board of Regents, died last month while attending a board meeting. His family requested the loan fund be set up for students attending the new College of Law at FSU.

Asst. Attorney General Sam Spector said donations should be sent to him in care of the Attorney General's Office in Tallahassee. "We have already had many inquiries and some contributions," Spector said.

The Memorial Scholarship Fund will be administered by a special committee of Odum's friends through the FSU Foundation. The last legislature authorized the FSU College of Law which will open in September with about 100 students.

DR. EDWIN HARTZ

Sexual Behavior Topic At Forum

"Recent Trends in Sexual Behavior on College Campuses" will be the topic of discussion Wednesday afternoon in the Florida Room of the Union at 4 p.m. by Dr. Edwin Hartz, professor of Social Welfare at FSU.

According to Hartz, "At the core of the 'sexual problems' on American campuses is the issue of clarifying and specifying sexual values. 'Students on campuses are asking what do we really believe about the rightness and wrongness of intimate relations between men and women before marriage? Should we strive for a single code for the entire society, permitting some deviancy in some circumstances, or should we encourage a variety of competing codes to exist?"

"The automobile, contraceptive devices, woman's equality and the faster pace of urbanized living have combined to weaken the traditional mores. Automobiles, penicillin and the pill have lessened the threats of detection, infection and conception," said Hartz.

"Today many young people are searching for more than sex education, they want adequate guides for their behavior in the male-female association. 'Meaningful guides in sexual behavior are the goals which college students are seeking."

City Council Dampens Plea For Opening Public Pools

By refusing to listen to any discussion on the matter, the Tallahassee City Commission in a meeting Tuesday afternoon shot down any hopes of having the municipal pools opened this summer.

The Tallahassee public swimming pools had been closed in July 1964 for "financial reasons" following a "wade-in" by Negroes at one of the three pools.

Since that time the Commission has snood its ground on the matter by saying the cost of reopening the pools is too expensive.

In Tuesday afternoon's meeting Tallahassee Mayor W.H. Cates, who presided, said, "We are not going to discuss the swimming pools... it is a closed matter."

In the course of the meeting, interested citizens served the Commission with petitions which the members chose to ignore. One citizen remarked that the issue will be taken to the polls, referring to next year's city elections when two of the Commission members will be up for re-election.

Acting-president of Liberal Forum Doug Schock asked Cates to hold a public hearing on the issue. Cates refused to respond and adjourned the meeting.

Bring ID's To Pool

Beginning tomorrow Identification cards will be checked at the Union Pool and the Reservation swimming area to insure that only authorized people are using these facilities. Dr. Herb Reinhard, director of the Union, announced today.

Any student, faculty or staff member who wishes to use these facilities must present a valid ID card to gain admission, he said.

Those persons who are authorized are all students, faculty, staff, members of the Alumni Assoc., their immediate families, official guests of the University and a date or house guest of one of the above.

House guests, University guests and families may obtain guest recreation cards at the main desk of the Union.

Earlier Kenzie Steele, pastor of the Bethel Baptist Church and president of the Inter-Civic Council, was ruled out of order by Cates when Steele said, "This is a public meeting, the pools belong to all citizens of Tallahassee."

The mayor responded, "Shall I ask someone to come in and help you out? We don't want dissension here."

The other City Commissioners remained silent on the issue and did not commit themselves to opening the swimming pools during the course of the meeting.

Dr. Parker Re-elected

Dr. Daisy Parker, professor of government, has been re-elected president of the University Faculty Club for 1966-67.

Other officers elected were Dr. Janet Wells, professor of women's physical education, vice-president; Dr. Thomas Lewis, Acting Dean of the Graduate School, treasurer; and Miss Marie Williams, Director of Social Activities, secretary.

Miss Parker received her bachelor of arts degree from Florida College for Women in 1937 and in 1942 became an instructor in political science. She holds a PhD degree from the University of Virginia and is a member of Mortar Board, Phi Beta Kappa and Phi Kappa Phi honoraries.

DR. DAISY PARKER

Nassau Cruise Set

The Union Special Events Committee is sponsoring a trip to Nassau in the Bahamas during the break between trimesters. The cruise will be aboard the S.S. Bahama Star and will be for four days, Monday, August 15, through Friday, August 19. The cost for the trip is a special one-day rate of $69. This includes meals, snacks plus accommodation on board the Bahama Star. The rate does not include shore excursions, which are optional, port taxes, tips, liquors and gratuities.

Democracy?

Will the Tallahassee city government ever grow up? Tuesday, though they accepted several petitions for the opening of the Tallahassee swimming pools, the City Commissioners did so with the same bad grace they have shown in dealing with any ideas on the subject of race which happens to be in conflict with their own.

Had they witnessed it, we are sure that many Tallahasseeans would have been embarrassed by the discourteous and dictatorial manner with which the Commission conducted itself.

Seemingly oblivious to the recent drownings, and the dangers of children playing in the streets (who might otherwise be swimming in the pools) they remained adamant not only on the opening of these facilities, but even on the question of a public discussion of the issue.

The meeting ended when, as a last resort to forestall discussion even in the limited context of the present group, one of the Commissioners cut off a question in mid-sentence by adjourning the session.

Aside from the question of the opening of the pools, there is another issue at stake here.

When citizens petition their representatives, they have a right to expect that their views will be courteously received, and that they will be taken into consideration. When they responsibly question their government, citizens have a right to an answer.

It is not up to representatives to tell their constituents what is a closed issue and what is not, but rather the other way around.

All of this is basic.

Equally basic is the question of the opening of the pools. Here, as before we are referring to the Government, and not to the people of Tallahassee. We are certain that they support open pools simply from the point of view that regardless of their own ideas on race, they have no right to restrict those who would freely choose to swim.

We have heard this sentiment from many local residents. Malcom Johnson editor of the Democrat has even expressed it editorially.

Why then, have the Commissioners not acted. Surely they know that without some progress, there is bound to be protest, not only from the Negro community, but also from the whites who also want to use the pools.

While little or no credit can be given the Commission for the improvement in race relations which has taken place over the years, these men must realize that if they do not at least make an effort the situation will surely deteriorate.

There is already protest, and it will certainly increase for it is a just protest and we support it. The next move is up to the Commission.

Gunn's Column

Las Señoritas

by SKIP GUNN

One of the most interesting contrasts between young people in the U.S. and the young people in Spain are their dating habits.

Spanish girls are beautiful, but it takes a lot of talent and a bit of luck to take out one of Valencia's "proper maidens." In the first place, few "proppers" will have anything to do with a boy unless they have been properly introduced. If the boy is successful in getting a date he can expect about a three month wait (length varies—of course) for his first kiss.

If the Spanish women delight in being coy, it can be said that the Spanish male makes up the difference with his aggressiveness. Many American girls I've talked with have complained that Spanish men are "wolves in wolf's clothing."

Like everything else here in Valencia, even dating is becoming Americanized. Although there is still too much red tape by American standards, the trend is toward a "thaw." This thaw is either the result of persistent Spanish men or impatient Spanish women, but I haven't been here long enough to figure out just who is persistent and who is impatient.

Union Sponsors Lime-Bag Rally

A Sports Car Rally will be held next Saturday, July 23, at 4:30 p.m. All faculty, staff and students are eligible to enter in any type of car.

The entry fee of $1.50 will cover participation, a meal for two and sports car movies at the Reservation.

According to rally chairman Bob Ellis, complicated accessory equipment will not be needed in this rally. Entrants need only "a car, watch, pencil and paper, brains and a love for driving" in order to compete. Ellis reports that "A rally is not a race. It demands that a car follow a specified route at a designated average speed. This rally will be an all time-bag rally, in which participants look for spotsches of lime on the road for their directions of travel."

"The cars are penalized points for exceeding the correct mileage and for deviating from the designated average speed. Penalty is greater for arriving at the destination early, since the rally strongly de-emphasizes speed."

Sign up as soon as possible in Room 315, Union.

No Mail, But Many Friends

by MONTI CASSALLS

Last week, I said I'd discuss ways and means of getting to know people on the campus. There are boldways and subtle ways; there are discreet ways and sensational ways; there are acceptable ways and questionable ways; in short, there are diverse ways.

The subtle and discreet take a great deal more intelligence and cunning than most of us have to spare. You might, for example, arrange to have your friends write you letters to the wrong box, with your hall and room number on it, so the person whose box it is, (and with whom you wish to become acquainted) will have to come clumping up to your dorm to deliver it. You may never get your mail this way, but that's the risk you take.

This sort of thing involves just one special person, and there are books written on it which you can read. I'm writing for lonely souls who just want some human companionship. Bold ways take considerable courage. You go running up to somebody you think you might like to know and say, "Hi! I remember you! You were in my algebra class in high school."

Don't you remember me? I'm so and so. What are you taking here at FSU?"

So you get said somebody in anticipation, conversion, and you're friends even when he does find out he doesn't know you at all. Of course you're properly embarrassed to learn he's Joe Blow from Wisconsin, and you've never been out of Georgia, but by then you're already acquainted, and you can take it from there.

A similar way is sitting down with a stranger in the dining hall and saying as you unload your tray, "Boy! That sure was a rough history text wasn't it?" You chatter on as you begin to eat. "Question 13 really threw me! I couldn't for the life of me remember how many years it took to build the biggest pyramid! Did you get question 27? The one about the Akkadian artifacts?"

By the time he gets it across to you that he never saw you before in his life, you've been talking for 15 minutes. Once more you are mortified, but amused to find that he is not the boy who sits next to you in Ancient History. You were sure he was, and the cafeteria is so crowded... so of course he invites you to stay put (hopefully), and there you are.

Discreet ways are such little things as asking directions and advice, or commenting on a class with someone who does have it with you. Sensational ways—well, you can faint in class, or fall in the fountain, or drop your full tray, or trip over a crack in the sidewalk. This takes nerve verging on lunacy.

All these ways are, of course, questionable. The acceptable ways are waiting to be introduced, waiting to be asked, waiting to be spoken to first, to be smiled at first... waiting, waiting, waiting. Usually, you will be disappointed with the results. Take your pick, or invent your own. Thus ends Monti's lecture for the week. Do I follow my own advice? Yes and no. I do occasionally pounce gleefully on a stranger, but I have not yet fallen into a fountain. I have promised Thorgud that I would push him in sometime before the trimester's end, to which he has replied... never mind what Thorgud has replied, just NEVER MIND. But every time we pass near a fountain he takes me roughly by the elbow and steers a wide path around it. I am taking him home with me this week end, and he promises not to push him into a canal, because he might get eaten by an alligator, and I would not want that to happen, even to Thorgud, so I will have to be content with pushing him into the ocean. But there are several more weeks left to scheme in. The scheming involves not so much luring Thorgud to the fountain's side and shoving, as it does staying alive after I've done it. Wish me luck.

A graduate of Jacksonville University, Sandlin is a candidate for the master's degree at FSU. He is minister of music at the South Jacksonville Presbyterian Church and director of choral music at the Bolles School in Jacksonville. Sandlin has made numerous appearances with the Jacksonville University Chorus. Opening with selections from Vivaldi's "Stabat Mater," Sandlin's program will include numbers by Schubert, Strauss and Faure. The program is open to the public.

Music Camp To Present 'Mikado'

Gilbert and Sullivan's most popular operetta, "The Mikado," will be presented by FSU's Music Camp at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday, July 26, in Westcott Auditorium.

The two-act comic opera tells of the troubles of Nanki-Poo, the son of the Japanese Mikado, who has fled from the court, disguised as a wandering minstrel, to avoid matrimony with the temperamental Katisha.

When Nanki-Poo arrives in Titipu, where Ko-Ko is Lord High Executioner and Pooch-Bah is Lord High Everything Else, he falls in love with the executioner's lovely ward, Yum-Yum, and his troubles begin.

All 75 members of the Music Camp operetta class have taken a hand in the production, which is under the direction of Betty Jane Grimm. She is being assisted by Carolyn Glenn, music director at Augusta Raa Jr. High and Tom Cavendish, doctoral student in the School of Music. The Mikado is played by Danny King. Nanki-Poo is sung by Archie Hinton, Ben Gunter plays Ko-Ko and Marvin DeTar plays Pooch-Bah.

Do you earn too much to afford one?

For many people the Volkswagen would be an ideal car. Except for one thing.

It doesn't cost enough.

They're afraid nobody will realize they have any money, if it doesn't show in their car. In other words, they buy their car for other people. Not themselves.

Then there are those who earn enough to buy a much better car than the VW. But they don't. Because they can't find one.

For them the best car is one that's simply comfortable and economical. One they don't have to worry about. That doesn't make many stops for gas. And rarely needs repairs.

A car where the rare repairs don't cost a lot. A car where the car doesn't cost a lot.

They feel they can afford to save money with a Volkswagen.

Now next time you see somebody driving a VW don't feel sorry for him.

Who knows? Someday the bank might use his money to give you a new car loan.

Of Arts And Sciences

Robert Lawton Appointed Dean

The appointment of Dr. Robert O. Lawton as dean of FSU's College of Arts and Sciences was announced today by President John E. Champion.

Arts and Sciences is FSU's oldest and largest division, with 24 departments from Art to Urban and Regional Planning and a faculty which staffs a dozen or more institutes or programs in the University.

Lawton, who has been in the central office of the College for 10 years and presently is assoc. dean will succeed Dr. E. Laurence Chalmers Jr. on Sept. 1. At that time Chalmers will become vice president for academic affairs.

In announcing the appointment, Champion said "We are extremely fortunate that Dean Lawton, who has served effectively as professor of English and assoc. dean in the College of Arts and Sciences, will succeed Dean Chalmers."

"Dr. Lawton's demonstrated abilities in the classroom and in academic administration make him especially qualified for this key position."

The newly appointed dean is a professor of English whose research and teaching specialty is the structure of Shakespeare's plays and Elizabethan drama. He attended Wofford College for two years but received his A.B. degree from Duke University in 1946.

His degree at Duke followed two and one-half years of military service during World War II. He served in the war as an infantry sergeant with the 1st Army in Western Europe and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross for his performance in combat.

Lawton also has a master's degree and a PhD degree from Duke.

He joined FSU's faculty as an instructor in English in 1949. From 1952 to 1954 he was director of the Armed Forces College (Bootstrap) Program at Eglin Air Force Base; from 1954 to 1956 he was director of the same program at Ramey Air Base. He was appointed asst. director of the entire FSU Bootstrap Program in 1956 and held this position until 1964. He was named asst. dean of the College of Arts and Sciences in 1958 and subsequently became assoc. dean.

Wolverton Succeeds Piccard As New Head Of Honors Program

The appointment of Dr. Robert E. Wolverton, assoc. professor of classics, as director of FSU's Honors Program was announced today by President John E. Champion.

Wolverton succeeds Dr. Paul J. Piccard, Honors Program director since 1962. Piccard asked to be relieved so he could return to full time teaching in the Dept. of Government.

Champion said FSU "has been very fortunate to have the outstanding leadership of Dr. Piccard in the honors program these past few years. It is a challenging assignment, of vital importance to the university, and he has met the challenge admirably."

The new director, who will devote half time to the Honors Program, is an honor graduate of Hanover College and holds an M.A. degree from the University of Michigan and a PhD from the University of North Carolina.

He has been a member of the FSU faculty since 1962. Before coming to Tallahassee he taught at the University of Georgia and Tufts University. He is 40.

Wolverton returned to the campus this summer from a year's leave during which he participated among the first 25 college faculty members in a new American Council on Education program to train college administrators. He spent the academic year at Mills College in Oakland, Calif.

The Honors Program, designed for outstanding undergraduate students, provides for challenging course work, frequently as individual studies directed by a faculty member. About 200 new freshmen enter the Honors Program for lower division studies every fall.

Incoming freshmen must have scored 450 or higher in their twelfth grade test or 1100 on their College Board examination and must have made an A minus or higher average in high school to be accepted for the Honors Program.

Students study in the lower division Honors Program through their sophomore year. Students also may study in the upper division Honors Program during their junior and senior years. In this program, which is administered by the various departments, the students select a field of specialty, not necessarily their major, and frequently do a thesis-type paper.

Apthorp To Talk On Constitution

James Apthorp, Jr., Executive Asst. to the Sec. of the State of Florida, will present the topic "The State of Affairs in Florida" at the Forum Series Wednesday.

In reference to the Forum, Apthorp said, "I would like to place some emphasis on challenges facing Florida's government and particularly on constitutional revision, education and the population explosion."

"It appears to me that we should be concerned about these matters at this time because we have a new legislature made up of younger and more aggressive people who have the capabilities to meet these needs if they are given a chance to get their feet on the ground. Students should be even more deeply concerned about the affairs of their state government because the opportunities for their participation will be greatly expanded," he said.

Apthorp, who entered FSU in 1957, served here in many student executive capacities, was a member of Omicron Delta Kappa, Gold Key, and the Hall of Fame, and was graduated in 1961 with a BS in Government.

Since graduation he attended law school and is presently employed as executive assistant in the office of Sec. of State.

Students Seek New Sex Mores

Despite reports to the contrary, the majority of college students are conservative in the area of premarital sex behavior, according to Dr. Edwin Hartz of the School of Social Welfare at FSU.

Speaking before the current "What the World is Going On" lecture series at the Union, Wednesday afternoon, Hartz said that "the reports that college youth are irresponsibly promiscuous and amoral are as wide of the mark as the statement that there have been no changes in the sexual expressions of the youth."

"There is evidence that youth today were earlier than yesterday, date readily more often, discuss sexual matters more openly and more often seek intimate relationships during the college years than did their fathers and fathers."

Hartz said traditional controls over premarital behavior have been modified by recent scientific findings and changes in the nation's mores. "The old fears of detection, infection and conception have been weakened by the automobile, penicillin and pills," he said. In addition, parental authority and other influences have not served as adequate guides for young people who "are searching for dependable guide lines."

The speaker, a former Methodist clergyman and university chaplain, said the students are seeking guidance from parents, clergymen and college leaders to help them adjust to the new mores in sexual behavior. "In the specific area of managing and directing sexual drives, the problems of adolescents are made more difficult by the lack of clear standards of behavior in the adult world. In movies, magazines, and the popular press, the treatment of sex is often feverishly physical. Even in research the physical aspect of sex is over-emphasized at the expense of the broader personal elements in the relationship," he said.

Hartz pointed out that many colleges are providing sound information and guidelines to students in this area.

Trembly Dies Of Heart Attack; Accounting Head For 14 Years

Edward D. Trembly, head of the Dept. of Accounting at FSU for the past 14 years died of an apparent heart attack at 11 p.m. Wednesday July 13, at his home in Tallahassee.

Trembly, 65, joined the FSU faculty in 1950 as professor of accounting. In 1952 he was appointed head of the dept. He had a bachelor's and master's degrees from the University of Michigan. He received the CPA from the state of Maryland in 1945.

Prior to joining the FSU faculty, Trembly had taught at the College of Syracuse University, Western Reserve University, University of Maryland, University of Toledo, University of Minnesota and the University of Mississippi.

His memberships included the Florida Institute of C.P.A.'s, Maryland Association of C.P.A.'s, American Accounting Association, National Association of Cost Accountants, Beta Alpha Psi, and Alpha Kappa Psi. Trembly was teaching two classes this trimester, and although he had had one previous heart attack several years ago, appeared to be in good health.

The family requested donations to the heart fund or to the School of Business Accounting Scholarship Fund in lieu of flowers.

Cooperation

In spite of efforts both by the "Flambeau," and by Student Government, we can see no improvement in faculty-student relations.

It is ironic that in spite of frequent classroom contacts, the average student is just as alienated from the faculty as he is from the president of the University.

Few, if any, professors make a habit of associating with their students out-of-class, and indeed some take great pains to avoid places frequented by students.

Instead of inviting the students to join with them in the resolution of the great problems facing the University, the faculty denies the students access to the groups working to solutions, even to the extent of refusing to furnish them with the knowledge that the problem exists.

This has been the way in the past.

Now, however, we are reaching a point of departure from old ways. Our University is growing, and, we hope, maturing.

It is therefore time to reevaluate old ideas and to hear new ones. Instead of falling into the trap of dealing only with the most obvious problems, we must re-examine even our basic premises. We must resolve the issues of the past and plan for the future.

We ask not only that this general reevaluation take place, but that it be done jointly, by the students and the faculty. (By the students, we mean the general student body, not just the student government.)

Specifically, we request that the faculty use the time remaining in this summer to plan a series of open faculty-student meetings for the fall, as a preliminary step toward a close and permanent relationship. Then, we can review the past, and begin planning for the future with a clean slate.

Make sure you like it before you buy it.
You know how long Volkswagens last.

like it or not, that's Volkswagen. With all the beauty of the funny-looking one.

An air-cooled engine that can't boil over or freeze and averages 28 miles per gallon of gas. Which is pretty good for a car that goes 84 miles per hour.

We not only put in a lot of what makes the bug so nice. We also put in a lot of what makes the bug so nice for so long. Sweet.

The Volkswagen Fastback is made the same way Volkswagens were made ten years ago. Since most of them are still around, that couldn't be too bad.

It goes through 3,120 inspections. Nothing gets into the car that isn't perfect. For a scratch on the door that only a trained VW inspector could ever see, we'll scratch the whole door.

We even take a lot of pains with what you can see. The paint job involves 2 chemical baths, 3 sandings (one by hand) and 4 coats of paint.

So first be sure you like the Fastback. Then be sure to pick a color you can live with a long time.

La Escuela En España

by SKIP GUNN

By this time many of you are probably wondering exactly why I'm in Spain and how I got here. I am participating, along with 17 other FSU students, in the Univer-ity of San Francisco's Summer Study Program in Valencia, Spain. There are approximately 300 students from US colleges and high schools who are enrolled in the program. Although "cost" was the last thing mentioned to my parents (and then only at their request), I feel somewhat obligated to mention money to you (since you too may someday plead with your parents for a few "pesetas")

Anyway, there are three programs available. Plan C includes room, board, and tuition for the six week course. It is designed for the person who wants to come to Europe earlier than the charter flight. It costs $200. Plan B is $650 and includes transportation as well as the essentials offered in Plan C. Plan A includes a two week bus tour of Spain and also first class accommodations. It costs $950 and, in my opinion, is excellent if one is too young or too old to travel alone or with a friend.

The course of study here is easier than comparable work at FSU, but in my opinion, more Spanish is actually learned here because one is in contact with the language all day and everyday.

All in all, the program gets my A-plus rating. It is suited both for the Spanish major and the person who wants a novel means for satisfying his language requirement.

Cassalls' Column

Reflections On The Orthodontist

by MONTI CASSALLS

How well I remember my first visit with the orthodontist! (This article, incidentally, will deal with braces, and should be fascinating for all of you who have experienced a yearning to learn all about braces. It should bring back nostalgic memories for those of you who have already learned all about braces and would just like to forget.)

As I was saying, how well I remember our first meeting! I was propped up in a hideously uncomfortable dentist's chair, my head was forced back, and my mouth held open, while he probed. As he probed, and tapped, and listened, stuck cotton and various instruments in my mouth and forgot them, and scraped, and sprayed, and poked, he'd look up every now and then and say something about me to his nurse, usually insulting. I'm sure, if only I could have translated it, and she would write it down in a record to be used against me later.

To start with, my face shape was brachio-cephalic. The length from my nose to my chin was 4 mm. There was some lapping of the ones and twos, my over-bite was not deep, but I had an upper protrusion, and a distocclusion on my molars and cuspids. He admitted grudgingly that my median line was good, that I had a well developed general muscular condition, a firm, normal mentals and a good playasma.

He went on to say, with a certain suspicious astonsishment, that my upper and lower frenum was normal, and my gingival conditions were good. As for my labial condition, it seemed I had a slightly short upper lip, and my upper teeth sat on my lower lip.

Even I could understand this last, and was rather displeased, having never thought of myself quite that way before, and was now getting a mental picture of myself as a young ape. He asked me to open my mouth and swallow, which I did with a great deal of difficulty.

He watched anxiously and then capered madly around the room shouting gleefully that I didn't have a tongue-thrusting habit, and he was so glad, because it was such a bad habit to break. I felt very proud of myself. He added that I had a rectangular palate and a small torus, which nearly provoked me into asking, "Gee, Doc, do you think I'll be able to have children?"

The next session consisted of having four perfectly good teeth pulled so that for others would have room to move. Thru my novocain-paritized mouth stuffed with cotton and wetter bags to stop the bleeding, I remember crouching tearfully to the four teeth cupped in my hand, in my best Gary Lewis style, "Sure gonna miss em..."

In a couple of weeks, though, the bleeding had stopped and I was able to eat something other than bread dipped in soup. It was then time for another appointment, and others followed.

Getting bands is a glorious experience. The doctor takes a circular piece of tin, spreads cement on it, and hammers it down over my tooth with the aid of a chisel, while I wether and scream and swear rhythmically, in time with each blow.

The nurse, Knuckles Farley, they call her, whose main function is to keep her fingers in my mouth, warns me that if I bite down, she'll bite back. There's the added frustration of learning to talk and eat all over again after each time they shove some more furniture into my mouth.

I can't whistle. I also can't close my mouth very well, and when I smile at small children, they cry. Older people stare at my braces avidly, and look fascinated, which makes me think they are hanging on every word I am saying, and is very good for my ego. Strangely, I have no trouble being served in bars. As Thorngood puts it, "Nobody wearing braces would dare walk into a bar unless they were twenty-one."

The saddest thing about wearing braces is looking goofy. I don't care who you are—if you are wearing braces, you look goofy. There is no way out of it. It is impossible to look sophisticated, or beautiful, or even your own age, unless you are nine. Ah, yes, there I sit, across the table at a quiet little dinner-for-two, my braces gleaming seductively in the candle light...

Asolo Theatre Productions Reviewed

by STEVE NIEMEYER

Already it was 10 a.m. and the maids were cleaning up the rubbish from last night's performance, but the members of the company were still buzzing with activity.

Fred Jones, sound technician, climbed down at last from the third floor light booth. He had a dark stubble of beard that indicated his all-night work. "We've been getting ready for this evening's opener," he said, "and some of the people in costumes haven't taken a break yet."

Outside the theater, Dr. Harlan Shaw was busy with a can of spray paint. He explained to me that Henry VIII's shoes made him stand out (literally), although they were made of the same material and color as the rest of his clothes. "It's hard to predict what will happen under those strange lights," he said.

On the stage itself, the crews were taking down one play's scenery and putting up another, for a mid-morning rehearsal. The carpets were first carefully ridden of their cigarette ash, then rolled and dried.

As energetic as the daytime rehearsals are, they are outdone by the evening performances of the four different productions in the repertoire.

Recital Given Tonight

Linda Sue Moore, clarinetist, and Mark Hanson, voice student, will present a joint recital this evening. The program will be at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall.

Miss Moore will play "Premiere Rhapsodie" by Debussy and "Sonata in F minor for Clarinet and Piano" by Brahms. Hanson will sing nine songs.

tolre. By far the best play of the Asolo Theater Festival (in its seventh season) is Richard G. Fallon's direction of Robert Bolt's "A Man for All Seasons."

This is a real drama that effectively communicates the power of Sir Thomas More, played by Al Smelko, as a man of principles. Man was made to serve the law. In contrast to these laws is a struggle between man and God. Even the narrator, The Common Man, played by Grant Kilpatrick, emphasizes the fact that when men consciously go against the grain they must rationalize their action. The Common Man, who is not one to refuse a bribe or a chance to fatten his income, remarks, "The sixteenth century is the century of the common man, like all the other centuries."

Smelko's complex of roles as barrister, father, husband, and lord chancellor—all parts of the character of More—is acted with fresh individual determination; the courage of conviction shows through each situation.

Kilpatrick, a foil to the upper classes, delivers his parts as boozeman, servant, jury, jester, and executioner so appropriately, that whether the audience responds to More's beheading or The Common Man's acquiescence, the reaction to the latter's message is attentive. "I'm breathing...are you breathing too? It's nice, isn't it, if we should bump into one another, recognize me?" The three other nights of entertainment are "Much Ado About Nothing," "The Miser," "Oedipus the King" and "The Bald Soprano." These will be reviewed in the future.

Gator Week Planned

FSU's campus population is expected to swell to several times its present size Oct. 8 when the U of F Gators meet the Seminoles at Campbell Stadium for the traditional football battle.

To help take care of the expected overflow crowd, FSU has named a coordinating committee headed by Asst. Dean of Men Bill Proctor. Proctor said the full committee has not yet been organized, but Kay Vernon at the University Union has been named chairman of a sub-committee to coordinate campus functions which will be held that weekend.

Proctor urged any campus groups, student, faculty or staff, to check with Mrs. Vernon on any plans they have.

Navy Procures

The Naval Aviation Procurement Team will be on the FSU campus August 1 through August 5.

The team will interview, advise and counsel qualified young men who are interested in earning a Naval Officer's commission.

Students completing 30 semester hours this term should ask about the Aviation Reserve Officer Candidate (pilot and non-pilot flight officer) program. Graduating students should look into the Aviation Officer Candidate (pilot).

Uses Of History Rundell Lecture

"The Uses of History," will be the topic of the fourth NDEA Summer History Institute's Public Lecture Series.

Dr. Walter Rundell, Jr., Director of the Survey on the Uses of Original Sources in Graduate History Training for the National Historical Publications Commission, will deliver the lecture Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Longmire Auditorium.

Rundell received his BS degree from the University of Texas and his MA and PhD degrees from the American University.

His book, "Black Market Money: The Collapse of U.S. Military Currency Control in World War II" is a product of his three and one-half years as historical officer, Office of the Chief of Finance, Dept. of the Army. Among his numerous articles are "History Teaching: A Legitimate Concern," "Social Education" and "Communication of Values in Teaching History," "The Social Studies."

Computer Study Here

Thirty-two talented high school students from 13 states are attending the 1966 Summer Mathematics Program at FSU.

Supported by the National Science Foundation, the Institute will run through July 29. It is directed by Dr. E. T. Denmark, asst. professor of mathematics education at FSU.

Each student will learn to program the IBM 709 High Speed Electronic Computer located in the Computing Center and have instruction in some computer related mathematics, Denmark said.

In addition to daily instruction of two hours in mathematics, the students will spend part of their time working on problems in earth science, utilizing contributions from astrophysics, biochemistry and other sciences.

Marian Irish leaving FSU For American University

Journalism lost a bright young reader and college teaching gained a distinguished professor as a result of a telegram sent by FSCW President Edward Conrad Aug. 8, 1933, Dr. Marian Irish, a Pennsylvanian, was then studying toward her literature at Yale University, was offered an associate professorship in political science at $2500 a year. She had one other offer, working for Fortune Magazine as a reporter $35 a week. She didn't weigh the offers long before responding to Conrad's urgent request to "wire speed."

After teaching at FSCW and FSU for 33 years—a period during which her colleagues named her the Yet as an undergraduate at Barnard College, where she held a Pulitzer scholarship, she had been planning to go into political journalism as a career. Her honors professor there was Raymond Moley, who subsequently was a member of the brain trust of the early New Deal and presently is editor of Newsweek Magazine.

After getting her degree at Barnard, Miss Irish worked for a year as librarian in government and law at Lafayette College, then went on to graduate work at Bryn Mawr, where she got a master's degree in politics and economics in 1932.

At FSCW she stepped into a vacancy caused by the resignation of Dr. Basile Carter Randolph, who had been professor of political science and department head since 1926. Dr. Randolph had been named president of Hollins College, a position which he filled from 1938 to 1950. He died earlier this month at the age of 81 in Lynchburg, Va.

Miss Irish was appointed head of the Division of Political Science in 1940, a year after she completed work on her PhD at Yale. She served as head of the division (later called Dept. of Political Science and Government) until in 1963 she gave up her administrative duties to devote full time to teaching and research.

In 1957 she won the most coveted honor a faculty member could receive here, the Distinguished Professorship. Shortly before this Miss Irish had told a freshman homecoming professor she thought the role of a professor should be: "To torment the student, unsettle his mind, provoke him into finding out for himself what a man can reasonably believe in a turbulent world."

Miss Irish probably is more widely known to American college students from the textbook, "The Politics of American Democracy" than from any other writings. She and James W. Frothingham are the co-authors of the book. Originally published in 1959 it is being revised for a fourth edition, which will appear in the fall of 1967.

She's published three other books and a fifth, "The Impact of Presidential Transition on American Foreign Policy," is in process of publication.

Her articles have frequently appeared in political science journals and she has written for such publications as the Sewanee Review and The American Scholar. Her journalistic sense for the telling phrase has resulted in her breaking into print occasionally in magazines like the Saturday Evening Post.

In 1957 she was somewhat dismayed when the British publication, New Statesman, captioned her article about President Eisenhower's conception of the presidency "The Cipher in the White House." She toned down the title to "The Organization Man in The Presidency" for Journal of Politics.

She's now in the second year as editor of The Journal of Politics and the editorial office will move with her to Washington.

She's never regretted her decision to go into political science instead of political reporting. "It's been a creative experience and I have enjoyed it," she said.

Activity Progress Report Issued By Student Services Committee

The Labor, Student Services and Education Committee of the Summer Legislative Council today released a report of progress in its activities this summer.

According to Student Body Vice President Joy Dickinson the Committee has investigated several student service projects which were initiated by Legislative Council resolutions.

Committee Chairman Palmer Williams said lockers will be secured for the use of students who commute to campus. The lockers will be located in the Union addition which will be constructed between the Activities Building and the Union Pool.

Complaints that the Par 3 golf course next to Campbell Stadium was being replaced by a maintenance building were investigated by the committee. It was found that the course will not be replaced and will remain open for use by students.

Summer Legislature Acts On Race And Rights Bills

In its most significant meeting of the trimester the Summer Legislative Council Wednesday night passed two resolutions concerning local race relations, a resolution on the impending Student Bill of Rights and a resolution concerning telephones in Strozier Library.

Sen. Mel Smith introduced three of the resolutions and Sen. Rick Hamilton introduced the one on the telephones.

The first resolution on race relations concerned the city owned swimming pools of Tallahassee. The pools had been closed in 1964 following a "wade-in" by Negroes at a white pool. The Tallahassee City commission had kept the pools closed on the grounds that it would be too expensive to reopen them. In the resolution the student senators said that in the behalf of the students at FSU we "do wish to notify Mayor Cates and the Tallahassee City Commission that we disagree wholeheartedly with the closed pools issue."

"It is had enough that the pools must remain closed but it is worse that the elected leaders of this community will not hear and attempt to respond to the views of the people of this community. We urge the Council to open its meeting room doors to some type of public meeting where views can be aired and we further urge the Council to take some affirmative action on opening the pools for the enjoyment of all the children of this city," continued the resolution.

Also on the issue of race the senators asked the off-campus housing office "to refrain from accepting any further rental listings from any owner or manager who refuses to rent to ANY FSU student regardless of his race."

Going further the resolution asks that the housing office require anyone entering rental listings to sign an agreement to comply with the non-discriminatory housing policy. The resolution also asked the 19th Student Senate which will convene in the fall to take further action on the issue.

Sen. Smith's third resolution recognized a need for an effective Student Bill of Rights and encouraged Student Government support in a positive manner so the bill can be passed in Trimester I.

D.S. Campbell Speaks

Summer commencement will be held in Tully Gym at 8 p.m., Saturday night, August 13, with President Emeritus Dock S. Campbell as the speaker.

Campbell was president from 1941 until his retirement in 1957, guiding this institution during the transition from FSCW to FSU.

DR. MARIAN IRISH

Second Distinguished Professor of the Year—Miss Irish has resigned as of Sept. 1, will become professor of international relations in the School of International Service, The American University, Washington. Her last work day at FSU, Saturday Aug. 13, will be a busy one from all conditions. Four of her graduate students have rushed along their external programs and hope to receive a PhD in commencement the night of Aug. 13. During her long tenure here, most in the department head, Miss Irish has taught an estimated 8000 students and her research and writings have gained her an international reputation in political science. She was the first woman to become president of the Southern Political Science Association and she served a term as vice president of the American Political Science Association.

Union Tent Planned

An activities tent sponsored by the Union will be erected outside Tully Gym for the week of trimester registration. Any organization wishing space in the tent should contact Dr. Herb Reinhard, room 250, Union. According to Reinhard, organizations using the tent will be provided a large table and chairs with stipulation that the organization have someone on duty at all times the tent is open. The organization must also provide its own signs, method of attachment, etc., said Reinhard. Because the tent is expected to be quite hot, a fan will be provided by the Union, he said. Further information can be obtained by calling 599-2860 or coming to room 250, Union.

"ISRAEL IN EGYPT"
... by Handel will be performed by the 40-member FSU Summer Chorus Monday night at 8:15 p.m. in Opperman Music Hall. The program, directed by Walter James, will be free and open to the public. Planned ahead discussing plans for the program are (from left) James, Ruth Sisson (organist) and Lynn Strickland (soloist).

Waiting

Imagine a university without a faculty.

On the other hand, imagine a university without students.

In either case you are left with a mere group of people.

You would think this would make it clear that both are equally important in academic life. The students are convinced, but not the faculty.

The current situation where the faculty is the sole authority in planning academic life is regarded by professors as the only reasonable arrangement. In reality it is no less, and no more ridiculous than it would be if the same function were filled only by students.

It seems impossible to resolve this senseless situation simply because there is no communication between the two groups.

Almost every attempt the students have made to establish even preliminary contact has been rebuffed.

It therefore seems safe to conclude that any successful bid for a solution will have to be made by the faculty. We are waiting.

Well Done

At last the summer legislative council has pulled out of its tailspin into trivia.

In Wednesday's session the senators passed three measures, which though long overdue, are worthy of a "well done" for the student legislators.

One measure supported the Student Bill of Rights. Another asked the housing office to refuse to accept rental listings from any owner or manager who practices racial discrimination in renting.

The last resolution is important not only for the sentiments expressed, but also because it marks a recognition of the university's responsibility in the community.

In this bill the council supported open Tallahassee pools and went on to say, "It is bad enough that the pools must remain closed but it is worse that the elected leaders of this community will not hear and attempt to respond to the views of the people of this community." Our sentiments exactly.

We are proud to be able to say that the Tallahassee City Commissioners can take a lesson in democracy from our Student Senators.

"But what is the tower for?"

Recently this stimulating and far-reaching question has perplexed the brilliant minds of many FSU students. This pondering of the great minds has been the result of a very tall scaffold that has been erected on the construction site of our new library annex.

It is common knowledge that the "real" experts in construction are not the contractors themselves, as they are too close to their work to be objective. The true artist in building and masonry are the "casual observers." Although it is true that the observer knows little about engineering and design, he feels justified in voicing his opinion, because it is for "him" the structure is being erected.

Here at this great institution of higher learning, we have achieved the apex of "casual observation." It has taken years of practice for most of us. But, alas, today we boast an enrollment of nearly 14,000 trained casual observers. We can observe anything, at any place, and at any time with complete objectivity and apathy. Presently, many of our observers have returned to their summer jobs leaving us temporarily short-handed. Therefore, it is up to those of us who remain to carry on the tradition by observing and prognosticating as to the true meaning of this "tower to the sky."

It could be:

- 1) A giraffe feeder
- 2) A sun deck for mountain climbers
- 3) A Physics privy for testing acceleration theories
- 4) A monumental fiasco not to be overshadowed by the colossal "anthill" across the street
- 5) A misinterpreted fly-speck on the blueprint
- 6) Student seats for the Florida Game
- 7) A new student parking area
- 8) Used to record the high water mark during the monsoon season
- 9) The beginning of a shell for oversized books
- 10) An ingenious device that enables the workers to build the roof first

If you have accepted any one of the above reasons for the essence of the tower, I respectfully inform you, you were mistaken. I, and I alone, know the true purpose of this farce.

My insight came to me as I was celebrating Black Mass on the top floor of Ft. Landis.

As the clock struck 12 midnight, and a cloud drifted mysteriously across the face of a full moon, a small voice cried out from the bell-tower. It was barely audible over the gentle roar of blissful snoring, but to the best of my knowledge here are the startling facts as they were revealed to me.

"The tower's real purpose is implied in a principle law of physics—it is easier to pour concrete downward than upward." Therefore ditches have been dug all around the excavation where the walls of the building will appear. The ditches are approximately the width of a wall and as deep as a five story building.

The concrete mold will be formed from the very bottom of the ditches extending all the way to the surface. Then, huge concrete trucks will race carelessly down West Call Street and fill up the four molds with cement.

When the cement dries, large cables will be attached to corners. These cables will extend up to the top of the scaffold, through a pulley, and down into the Home Economics parking lot.

When everything is in order, 20 grizzly construction workers will heave on the cable and pull the concrete out of the buried molds into a standing position forming the walls of the building.

This feat of daring and skill will only be exceeded by the fact that the roof has already been completed and is hovering above waiting for the walls to be raised.

For this and other fearless feats of courage and boldness, say tuned for trimester I as it creeps into the September calendar with the subtlety of a wart hog.

Injustices In State Law

by PARRIS GLENDENING

On July 7, 1966, justice in Florida's legal system moved forward—almost. On this date the trial of Mary Louise Robinson ended. This mother of nine was on trial for her life, accused of the bloody stabbing of her boyfriend.

The controversial Circuit Judge Richard Kelly had ordered the unprecedented action of dividing the trial into separate stages of guilt and mercy. If the jury returned a verdict of guilty as charged, additional evidence was to be presented and the jury would then separately consider the question of mercy. If it failed to recommend mercy, the death penalty would be mandatory.

Fortunately or unfortunately, depending on the side of the bars from which you observe this action, the prosecution agreed to drop the murder charge and accept a plea of manslaughter. Thus, as one observer noted, "The gate was shut before Mrs. Robinson could step through into the pages of legal immortality. She turned back, though, with her life."

What does this have to do with justice in Florida? The Florida legal system operates under the most archaic and severe injustice of those many injustices left over from the darker ages—capital punishment.

This atrocity, used so effectively in the South to keep the Negroes and the poor in their place, would have been lessened by the spiritual approach. (A sad commentary on life in this society is evident when reformers must talk of lessening, rather than correcting such atrocities).

Most legal experts have agreed that this would have been a needed improvement of "value to the state and the defendant." There would be far less reluctance to take the defendant guilty if the jury knew that it could legally consider the question of mercy separately. And, more importantly, there would be greater thought given to the idea of the justice of capital punishment if each juror had to vote to send a man to his death, rather than letting the judge pronounce sentence.

Each of the twelve jurors would have to say, "This person must die!" This writer could not do so; for clearly society has failed the murderer as much as the murderer has failed society.

Capital punishment is just one small part of larger set of injustices found in Florida. (Florida is, of course, not the only state practicing such injustices, but this fact does not lessen our guilt.)

Daily one is struck by a "sense of injustice." Not to be aware of this is not to be aware of the world around you. To write of these injustices (from the immediate outrage of closed swimming pools in 90 degree heat to the larger social injustice of illiteracy and hunger in a period of abundance) would require more pages than is possible to write in a lifetime. Not to think about these injustices is equally impossible.

If you're counting on a new VW,
you can stop at $1616.68

In fact, when it comes to money, a VW will save you a lot of counting after you buy it, too.

On gas bills. (It gets about 29 mpg.)
On tires. (They average 40,000 miles.)

It hardly ever needs oil between changes.

And, since the engine is air-cooled you never have to dish out for anti-freeze.

So if you don't like to count, buy a Volkswagen.

It figures. * price includes freight, federal taxes, local delivery and dealer service.

Library Acquires Book Collection

The initiative of an FSU student has brought the University library a private collection of 10,000 volumes including a wide selection of first and limited editions.

Edward A. Scott, a graduate student, was visiting Dr. David F. Sellers of Mobile, Ala. when the physician mentioned he would like to donate his huge personal library to a university. Scott, a student in library science, immediately suggested FSU.

N. Orwin Rush, director of libraries at FSU, contacted the Mobile physician and the books are now being cataloged by the FSU library staff.

The collection is especially strong in the Civil War period and there are several art and children's books. Most of the books will go into the general collection of the library with the more valuable ones scheduled for special collections.

Rush said the collection is "one of the finest personal libraries I have ever seen and we are indeed grateful."

The Mobile physician is an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist and collects books as a hobby, in addition to books, he has extensive collections of stamps, coins, antiques, objects d'art and a rare group of Napoleonic artifacts.

He received his undergraduate degree from the University of Alabama and his M.D. from Tulane. He did post-doctorate work at Charity Hospital in New Orleans and Tulane. Dr. Sellers is president-elect of Providence Hospital Medical Staff and has been president of several other medical organizations as well as an active member of several medical honoraries and national professional organizations.

Dr. and Mrs. Sellers have lived in Mobile since the early 1940's. They have no children. Dr. Sellers said he selected Florida State for the gift because of "Edward Scott's enthusiasm for Florida State and his interest in books and the library profession."

Franco 'Muy Bueno'

by SKIP GUNN

Valencia, Spain—One of the things which has interested me most here in Spain is the Franco government. For all practical purposes, Franco has complete control of the government. There is only one way to get something accomplished, and that is by the "Franconian Method." This "method" permeates daily life in many forms. The government runs both television stations, the radio station, and while I'm not certain about the newspapers, I haven't read any articles which have been critical of Franco.

The Spanish people I've talked with usually try to avoid talking about Spanish politics. The family I'm staying with expressed their feelings by saying that "it is O.K. to say that the government is 'bueno' but it is not so good to call it 'malo'."

While criticism of the government is discouraged, I feel that most of the Spanish people approve of Franco's rule. After all, he won the Civil War, and for the past 30 years there has been peace and signs of prosperity. Also, Franco has been practical in his realization of Spain's problems. That is, he has occupied himself with the internal problems of the country rather than the game of international politics.

I also think it is fortunate for the United States that Franco is in power. For example, there are Communists in Spain—Franco is to that when he won the Civil War. Also, during his rule Franco helped to solidify Spain's friendship with the United States.

It's not every nation's government that looks the other way when an atomic bomb is dropped on its soil. Here in Spain the Bomb incident was made into a joke, but it could have easily been a very nasty incident.

In short, while Franco's government has been authoritarian, I think that it has for the most part, been good for Spain. However, after Franco passing well into his six years one may pose the question after Franco—who?
